

Our part in education...

"When I compare our high schools to what I see when I'm traveling abroad, I am terrified for our workforce of tomorrow." -Bill Gates
"Many voices are calling for a major effort in what has come to be called "STEM" education—Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics—to address the looming competitive issue. (We) face daunting economic challenges, which make it absolutely essential that the workforce in our region be as capable as possible." -William P. Getty, President of Claude Worthington Benedum Foundation

The Boone County Community Foundation recognizes the importance of educational funding and has responded to the needs of area schools. Over $31,186.00 has been given in foundation grants to educational programs for Boone County's children. To help in this process, the Boone County Board of Education is now partnering with the foundation in creating a contribution plan for public school employees to give to the foundation through payroll deduction. Together, we can meet the needs of our children, ensuring a better future for them and for our communities.

Thoughts for Year-End 2008

Boone County Community Foundation

Give wisely, give of yourself, give together, give well, give willingly, give without grudge, give freely... give.

The power of one...

One person, one idea, one choice, one gift... one can be a very powerful entity. Don't make the mistake of thinking that your part is insignificant because it seems little. One is a very small number, but it can make such a difference... especially when combined with a lot of other ones! If you can't create your own named fund, give to a fund that already exists. Your charitable goals may still be fulfilled by joining with others in theirs.
